

Water Resource Values

This map shows the location and types of water resources for planning and resource management purposes. All of the surface water resources were assigned high values, including a buffer that protects and supports the resources. Additionally, groundwater resources were valued based on groundwater recharge potential and by providing a protective ring around groundwater wells. These ranges of values are used to help the County focus efforts in areas that are most critical to protecting water resources.

